

RACHEL'S RUMINATIONS

rachelsruminations.com

About the Blog

Rachel's Ruminations is a travel blog emphasizing independent travel to historical and cultural sights/sites. Most articles focus on one place or experience at a time, offering an honest personal perspective as well as useful information.

About Rachel

Rachel is a writer, blogger and teacher-trainer living in Groningen, the Netherlands. Born and raised in the US and educated at Yale, she met her Dutch husband when she served in the Peace Corps in Malawi. Their two children are grown, so they have entered the "empty nest" phase of their lives, leaving more time for independent travel.

40

Domain Authority

8-9K

Monthly Page Views

5-6K

Monthly Unique Visitors

89%

New Visitors

11%

Returning Visitors

Visitors by age range

27.5%

18-24

33.5%

25-34

15.5%

35-44

12.5%

45-54

5.5%

55-64

5.5%

65+

Visitors by gender

46%  54%

Location of visitors

Approximately half of the site's readers are in the US, while the rest are scattered around the world.

Writing samples

To get an idea of Rachel's writing style, you can visit her portfolio at Clippings or any posts on Rachel's Ruminations.

Twitter
7.9K+ followers

Instagram 1249
followers

Facebook
665 followers

Pinterest
120K
monthly views

LinkedIn
679 connections

Youtube
203 subscribers

Collaborations

Rachel is available for a wide range of collaborations:

- sponsored posts
- travel product or service reviews
- writing for your website or magazine
- guest blog posts
- affiliate links
- participation in social media campaigns
- fam tours
- any other forms of collaboration through writing, the blog, or social media

Rachel is a member of the International Travel Writers Alliance.

Contact Rachel at:

rachel@rachelsruminations.com